Love and Art

This painting portrays Afghan culture with its beautiful traditional dresses, set against the backdrop of turmoil after the Taliban's takeover. The Taliban's restrictions on music and education have deeply affected Afghan life. Despite these challenges, the artwork celebrates Afghan resilience through vibrant colors and detailed dress designs. It serves as a powerful reminder of the Afghan people's enduring love for their cultural heritage and their determination to preserve it despite adversity.

Fahima Ashori studied painting at the Fine Art Institute in Kabul, Afghanistan. After the fall of Afghanistan, she was brought to Wellfleet in June 2022 with the help of Yo Yo Ma's Silkroad. An oil painter for nearly a decade, she has shown and sold her artwork in Afghanistan and the United States. In the past years, Fahima held many art shows on the Cape at Wellfleet Preservation Hall and The Commons, which SOLD OUT and garnered an unanimously positive response from the community. Her mission as an artist is to bring a message of peace and justice into the world and to expose to the current state of Afghanistan and celebrate its rich culture through her art.
