Market Snapshot for September 2016

U.S. Gross Domestic Product (GDP) was revised upward to 1.4% in 2Q16, an increase from the previous estimate of 1.1%, in the Commerce Department's final assessment. Unemployment rose to 5.0% from 4.9% in September in the most recent jobs report issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Jobless claims fell 5,000 to 249,000, the second lowest level since 1973. The U.S. Institute for Supply Management (ISM) Purchasing Manufacturing Index (PMI) expanded in September to 51.5, higher than 49.4 in August and stronger than market expectations. (A reading above 50 indicates the manufacturing sector of the economy is growing.)

The Federal Reserve (the Fed) left interest rates unchanged at the September meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC). Three of the seven FOMC members favored raising rates at this meeting: Boston Fed President Eric Rosengren, Kansas City Fed President Esther George and the Cleveland Fed's Loretta Mester. The U.S. Dollar Index depreciated 0.6%, while the yen and the euro rose 2.1% and 0.9%, respectively. Oil prices rose to $48.2 a barrel, a 7.9% increase from August's $47.0 a barrel, after the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries' ("OPEC") announcement of a preliminary deal to cut crude oil production.

In September, U.S. equities rose on the oil price rally and the Fed's decision to keep interest rates steady. Domestic small cap stocks returned 1.1%, outperforming large caps, which were flat in September.

Developed international equities rose 1.2% in September. European equities gained 0.9%, as investor fear over Deutsche Bank's financial health diminished following CEO John Cryan's positive statement. Japanese equities rose 1.6% on FX (foreign currency) appreciation due to the 2.1% rise in the yen.

Emerging equities gained 1.3% in September. Chinese and Russian equities rose 2.5% and 3.9%, respectively, on higher energy prices. The Brazilian equity market was nearly flat at 0.3%, but has risen 63.2% so far in 2016. Frontier markets also rose 2.6% in September.

In fixed income markets, the 20+ Year STRIPS Index fell 2.8% in September, but remained strongly positive at 21.8% CYTD. The 20+ Year STRIPS Index returned 20.5% on a trailing 12-month basis ending September 30, 2016. The Barclays Capital U.S. Aggregate Bond Index lost 0.1% in September.

EMD local currency gained 2.0% for the month, as yields were 11 bps lower (the yield and price move in opposite directions). Bond prices rose 0.6%, while FX rose 0.89% and coupon added 0.5%. Emerging markets debt local performance was led by South Africa, Colombia, and Russia.
