

Recorded Training

LEADING YOUR PEOPLE BACK TO WORK

OVERVIEW:

The return-to-work process offers organizations an opportunity to communicate their values and priorities through actions. During this time of transition and uncertainty, it is critical that managers take the right steps to lead their people successfully. Trust and engagement must be established, and steps must be taken to ensure that people feel connected with their organization, their sense of purpose and their work. This session will explore key techniques that leaders can implement to help motivate and support their people.
